Opis choroby *

Definicja

Dysmorphism-conductive hearing loss-heart defect syndrome is a rare, multiple congenital anomalies syndrome characterized by a distinctive facial appearance (low frontal hairline, bilateral ptosis, prominent eyes, flat midface, broad, flat nares, Cupid's bow upper lip vermilion, and small, low-set, posteriorly rotated ears), in addition to cleft palate, conductive hearing loss, heart defects (atrial or ventricular septal defect) and mild developmental delay/intellectual disability.

Dane

Klasyfikacja Zespół wad wrodzonych

Kod ORPHA 289553

Kod OMIM 615102

Kod ICD10 Q87.8

Kod ICD11

*Źródło

orphanet