

Opis choroby *

Definicja

East Texas bleeding disorder is a rare, genetic, coagulation disorder characterized by easy bruising (without hemarthrosis or spontaneous hematomas), epistaxis, menorrhagia, and excessive bleeding after minor trauma and surgical procedures. Patients present a prolonged prothrombin time and/or activated partial thromboplastin time, normal levels of all coagulation factors, and normal protein C activity.

Dane

Klasyfikacja

Podtyp etiologiczny

Kod ORPHA

391320

Kod OMIM

605913

Kod ICD10

D68.2

Kod ICD11

-

*Źródło

orphanet