

Opis choroby *

Definicja

Heiner syndrome, also called cow's milk hypersensitivity, is a food induced pulmonary hypersensitizing syndrome that affects primarily infants and that is characterized by pulmonary hemosiderosis (see this term), digestive bleeding, anemia and poor growing, improving with elimination of cow's milk from the diet.

Dane

Klasyfikacja

Podtyp kliniczny

Synonimy

Cow's milk hypersensitivity

Nadwrażliwość na krowie mleko

Kod ORPHA

99932

Kod OMIM

-

Kod ICD10

J99.8*

Kod ICD11

CB05.5

*Źródło

orphanet