

Opis choroby *

Definicja

Heiner syndrome, also called cow's milk hypersensitivity, is a food induced pulmonary hypersensitizing syndrome that affects primarily infants and that is characterized by pulmonary hemosiderosis (see this term), digestive bleeding, anemia and poor growing, improving with elimination of cow's milk from the diet.

Dane

Klasyfikacja	Synonimy
Podtyp kliniczny	Cow's milk hypersensitivity Nadwrażliwość na krowie mleko
Kod ORPHA 99932	Kod OMIM -	Kod ICD10 J99.8*
Kod ICD11 CB05.5

*Źródło

orphanet